GET CLAD

Golf is more than a pastime; it is a chance to look like you know who you are...regardless of how well you play. So why do so many golfers miss the mark when it comes to attire? Anna Ott—owner of the Valencia-based retail and online shop, Uomo Sport—is offering 'personal shopper' services to golfers who want to complement their games. Available by email or phone, Ott will personally help coordinate the look you seek, guide you to dress within course standards and offer selections from top brands like Bugatchi, Ben Hogan, ECCO, Peter Millar and more. Afterward, you'll own your style. www.uomosport.com

Collaborate and Prosper

Stone Brewing Company is a big deal in the beer world...as in the entire globe. For proof, look no further than the San Diego brewery's latest releases: two new collaborations that had owners Greg Koch and Steve Wagner travel to both Norway and Scotland this past summer:

along with Stone's head brewer, Mitch Steele. The threesome first brewed a holiday ale with Norway's Nøgne Ø brewery, called Jolly Pumpkin, before they hopped the North Sea to create a black Belgian double IPA called Bashah with Scotland's BrewDog brewery. The guys at BrewDog equated the experience to being able to "rock out" with your favorite musician. However, we bet no amount of pro-am rocking out would create anything as sweet as the Bashah. Both cross-cultural brews are available in limited quantities this fall. stonebrew.com

MARIA, MARIA

The St. Regis hotel in New York City might have been the birthplace of the Bloody Mary, but it's the iconic company's new St. Regis Punta Mita, 45 minutes north of Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, that should go down on the record as the spot where the drink was perfected. Embodying the atmosphere of the resort by highlighting the St. Regis's rich history and blending it with a sense of the Riviera Nayarit's burgeoning vitality, the Agave Bloody Mary is the perfect fusion of the traditional brunch drink with enough agave nectar to get you going before 18 holes on either of two Jack Nicklaus-designed courses that St. Regis guests have access to at the private Punta Mita Golf Club. By the time you reach the 17th hole on the new Bahia course, with the waves crashing along your left side the entire way from tee to green, chances are you'll be ready for a second one. stregis.com / puntamita
